Thursday afternoon special group meetings were held. Prof. Leo M. Chamberlain spoke to the department of colleges and normal schools, his subject was "Higher Education in Kentucky in the Light of Current Economic Conditions." Thursday night the university club gave "Lambert," before the general assembly. Thursday evening the banquet of the university was held in the Brown hotel, with President McVey presiding. Speakers on the program were James H. Richmond, superintendent of public instruction, Frankfort, and Miss Florence Hale, president of National Education Association. Music was furnished by the university men's glee club.

Today a general session will be held in the afternoon, and special group meetings in the afternoon.

This afternoon Dean Taylor, College of Education, of the university will speak before the conference of science teachers on "What the Beginning Teacher Should Know," and before the department of city superintendents on "Gains and Losses in Education in Kentucky." Prof. J. S. Mitchell, professor of mathematics at University High school, will address the conference of mathematics teachers. His subject will be "Recent Changes in the Teaching of Mathematics." ADCOCK CHANGES OPENING HOUSE

Strollers' Comedy "Good News" Will Play at Woodland Auditorium Instead of Kentucky Theater

"Due to an unreasonable conflict with local labor unions, we have been forced to forego plans for holding our play at the Kentucky theatre, and have decided definitely to use the Woodland auditorium for the production of "Good News," was the statement made by Hugh Adcock, director of Strollers in regard to the production of the spring play.

However, Director Adcock expressed gratification at the fact that at the Woodland auditorium it will be possible to have stage rehearsals with all the stage sets of the play, a week before the initial showing of the comedy. He said, "I am encouraged over the changes: This would have been impossible at any other playhouse which could have been obtained."

The first complete rehearsal of the play was held last night at the Training School auditorium. All choruses were used, and the music of the Blue and White orchestra was added for the first time to the regular rehearsal. The rehearsal proceeded with comparative smoothness and it was decided that the date for the presentation of the production, April 27, would not be changed. The boys' and girls' choruses each have four routines, which were originated by Georgianna Weedon, the dance director.

Last Wednesday a meeting of the business staff was held to arrange for the sale of tickets, and it was decided that they would be put on sale by the early part of next week. Besides being handled in each sorority and fraternity house by appointed representatives, they will also be on sale at the Dunn Drug store on the corner of Maxwell and Limestone streets.

New additions to the staff are the trio, which is composed of Jimmie Lyons, Mickey McGuire, and Bill Conley; and Lawrence Alexander, who is to take the part of the gatekeeper. Alexander will also lead all group scenes.

Magazine Publishes Professor's Article

"A Glance Behind the Trotter, is the title of an article by Dr. W. S. Anderson, professor of genetics in the Agricultural College of the university which appears in the March-April issue of "The Horse," a magazine published by the United States equestrian service in Washington, D. C.

The article deals with the making of the American trotting horse, is illustrated by pictures of such famous horses as Axworthy, Guy Axworthy, Mr. McElwyn, Protector, and Peter Volo. Some of these pictures, notably the one of Axworthy, are considered rare.

A second article on the subject of trotting horses by Professor Anderson is considered an authority on the subject, and has contributed many articles to magazines on the breeding and development of race horses.

GOES TO CINCINNATI

Edward W. Rannels, head of the art department left today for Cincinnati to serve on a jury of selectors for the annual exhibition of American art to be held at the end of this month at the Cincinnati Art museum.

Collection of Rare Butterflies Given to Experiment Station

A rare collection of more than 100 beautiful South American butterflies has been given to the experiment station of the university by Miss Katherine Pettit, Lexington, who is widely known for her work in the Hindman and Pine Mountain settlements.

The collection was given to Miss Pettit by a naturalist whom she met on her recent trip to South America. The specimens are perfect, showing that great care was taken in collecting and preserving them.

As time permits, the butterflies will be removed from the flat paper triangles in which they have been kept, and will be added to the extensive collection of the department of entomology at the experiment station. Dr. Harrison Garman started this collection many years ago and it has been gradually built up. It now contains larvae and adults forms of most of the native insects of this country, butterflies and moths, bees, wasps, flies, beetles, dragon flies, bugs, cicadas, leaf-hoppers, grasshoppers, crickets, katydids,

PAUL C. MORTON WILL BE SPEAKER AT CONVOCATION

Lexington City Manager Will Appear Under Auspices of O. D. K.

'LEADERSHIP' IS TOPIC FOR APRIL ASSEMBLY

Convocation Will Be Held at Third Hour Thursday,
April 21

The April convocation will be held at the third hour Thursday, April 21, according to an announcement issued yesterday. City Manager Paul C. Morton of Lexington will be the speaker. He is being presented under the auspices of Omicron Delta Kappa, honorary campus leaders fraternity. This is the city manager's first address to the entire student body.

Mr. Morton, who is a native of Louisville, was selected "Leadership" as the topic for his address, before coming to Lexington as manager. He occupied the same position at Petersburg, Virginia. Before the world war Mr. Morton was connected with the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad, and the Louisville and Nashville railroad in the capacity of a civil engineer.

During the world war the city manager saw service in France with the 1st Engineers corps. At the close of the war he returned to Virginia and became a member of the state highway commission. Following this he served as director of public safety in Alexandria, Virginia. When the city manager system was instituted in that city he was selected to serve as the head of the new government. Mr. Morton returned to Lexington to accept a position in that city.

Officers of Omicron Delta Kappa who will have charge of the convocation are Horace Miner, president, Ben Leroy, vice-president, and Ben Stenhouse, secretary.

Junior Week To Be Held At University June 7 to June 11

Junior Week will be held at the university from June 7 to 11, according to an announcement issued yesterday by officials of the Agriculture college. J. W. Whitworth, who is in charge of junior work in Kentucky, will supervise the annual affair, which will begin immediately after the close of school.

Although no definite program has been arranged, the four-day conference is expected to attract more than 500 boys and girls from 85 counties of the state. Contests will be arranged and prizes awarded to the best in each event. Classes will be held every day for the visitors and scientific methods of farming and home building will be taught by members of the university staff.

Three general convocations will be conducted by the officials of the meeting. At the first convocation, President Frank L. McVey will be asked to address the visitors and at the third convocation Dean Thos. P. Cooper will be the principal speaker. Another feature will be the farm and home demonstrations conducted by visitors from each county.

The most healthful boy and girl in the state will be selected during the meeting. In the past those selected have been among the most healthful in the entire country.

Railroads serving the various counties in the state will cooperate in the conducting of the week by offering transportation to the best members of the junior clubs in each county.

While visiting the university the girls will be housed in Patterson hall and the boys in the men's dormitories. Last year Governor Flem Sampson was a guest of the conference and addressed the contestants. Later during the week a visit to Frankfort was arranged and members of the entire group were guests of the governor.

praying mantises, caddis-flies, may-flies, and some spiders and myriapods.

It would be difficult to estimate the value of this unusual collection which covers the history, localities and dates of injurious and beneficial insects for many years. It is of great practical use to the work of the department for its named specimens afford better and quicker means of identifying insects sent in for determination than any written description.

Interest has been added to this native insect collection by former students of entomology who have from time sent in specimens they have secured in foreign countries, such as beetles and spiders, butterflies and moths from Brazil, the Philippines, and South America.

Miss Pettit's contribution, when mounted, will make a most attractive exhibit and will be of interest to all students of the university and visitors to the department of entomology.

SALES CONTEST WINNERS NAMED

Alpha Sigma Phi and Tri

Cups for Fraternity and Sorority Sales

MANY ANNUALS SOLD

Winners of the Kentuckian Sales contest, announced Wednesday, are Alpha Sigma Phi, winner of the individual cup; Delta Delta Delta, winner of the sorority cup; and Alpha Sigma Phi, winner of the fraternity cup. The sales campaign, originally conducted in connection with the popularity contest, which closed March 10 with Jane Dyer and Ralph McConnel as winners, was extended until Wednesday afternoon, April 13.

The engraved silver loving cups, which have been on display in the Dunn Drug company, will be presented as soon as the engraving is completed.

John Kane, sales representative for Alpha Sigma Phi, captured the individual cup and the fraternity cup with a total of 24 paid subscriptions for the 1932 Kentuckian. Alvin Myers Ross, sales representative for Delta Delta Delta, connected a total of 20 subscriptions, which gave winning place in the contest for the cup offered to sororities, and second place in the individual cup contest.

Third place in the contest went to Evelyn Treassey, Alpha Gamma Delta, with 16 sales. The number of sales for other representatives who ranked high are: Nevin Goebel, Alpha Gamma Kappa, 12; Sara Betnel, Delta Zeta, 9; Betty Boyd, Kappa Gamma, 8; Helen Glover, Zeta Tau Alpha, 6; Marjorie Weaver and Gladys Rice, Kappa Delta, six each; and O. B. Collman, Delta Tau Delta, five.

Sales representatives were appointed from each fraternity and sorority, and these formed a committee which had charge of subscriptions to the annual from members of the various organizations.

At a meeting of sales representatives subscription booklets were given each representative, and filed record of all subscriptions by each sales representative has been kept in the Kentuckian office.

Island Purchases State Bred Mules

A span of Kentucky mules left Lexington Thursday for a long trip by train and boat to Porto Rico. They were purchased for the island's agricultural college by Prof. W. S. Anderson of the experiment station, university at the request of H. L. Hershey, purchasing agent of the bureau of insular affairs, New York. The animals were prime Kentucky stock, 5 years old, and weighing approximately 1,400 pounds each. They were bought from S. C. Brooks, Greendale pike, Fayette county. The animals were shipped by train to Baltimore, where they were to be put on board a ship for Porto Rico.

Cosmopolitan Club Will Elect Officers

Cosmopolitan club, a social organization of foreign students on the campus, will hold a business meeting and election of officers tonight at 8 o'clock at the Y. M. C. A. recreation rooms.

The nomination committee composed of Prof. E. A. Bureau, Roslin Angelucci, and Angelo J. Tomasulo will report their selections.

A committee to draw up a new constitution, composed of Dr. O. Koppius, Prof. Bureau, Ralph Johnson, Nicholas Chepeleff, and Angelo J. Tomasulo, which was appointed at the last meeting, will make a report.

Engineering College Tears Down Building

Have you all seen what the Engineering College is doing to their old wooden buildings? As you all know by now, Dean Anderson loves to create a beautiful place for the students to enjoy. The tearing down of these buildings will add to the appearance of the college. In their place there will be a continuation of the rock gardens, which will be planted with spring flowers. The Engineering college can easily be said to be the most beautiful college on the campus.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES TO MEET

The Board of Trustees of the university will meet at 10:30 o'clock Monday in the office of President McVey.

'CATS WILL MEET VANDY THINKS THERE SATURDAY

Shively Expects Commodores to Give Wildcats Hardest Opposition

EIGHTEEN MEN WILL TAKE NASHVILLE TRIP

Kelly to Run in 100 and 220;
Heber Will Be Out for
at Least a Week

With an easy win over the University of Louisville behind them the Wildcats track squad will leave early this morning for Nashville, where they will meet with their first serious opposition of the year, against the Vanderbilt Commodores Saturday afternoon.

On the eve of their departure for the Tennessee city it was learned that Johnny Heber, star sprint man, will be unable to run against the Commodores and may not run for several weeks, as his left leg has failed to respond to treatment. He will run in the sprints as his leg is somewhat better, and he hopes to make his best time of the season. Carl Ball, sophomore sprint ace, will run the 100 and 220 Saturday and, in addition, will run a quarter-mile on the mile relay team.

Vanderbilt is a very strong foe to be met so early in the season, as they defeated Centre last Saturday 10-9 and swept practically all running events. Their relay team is undefeated in many seasons and the big blue with its best relay four in several years will be hard put to break the string of Vandy successes, as the Tennessee men ran the mile in 3:37.1, as compared to the Cats' mile in 3:48.

The entries for the Wildcats will be practically the same as in the last meet. The long track to the Tennessee capital will be made by automobile, and 18 athletes will be taken, according to Coach Bernie A. Shively.

Kelly and Ball will oppose Woodward of Vanderbilt in the 100 yard dash and seems assured of first and second, as Woodward's time against Centre was 1:15.5 seconds, which is very slow time for a college 100 yards. The 220 should develop into a three-sided fight between Woodward of the Commodores and Kelly and Ball. Woodward's time last week was 2:33, compared to Kelly's 2:42. Ball, however, was not pushed in the Louisville meet and eased in 20 feet ahead of his opponents. Ball is one of the biggest units to be uncovered on the track team here since "Shipwreck" Kelly came to the university. He is only a lot less speedy than the "wreck" and should turn in a good race in the 220 Saturday.

Baker and O'Bryant will be opposed in the mile run by Pickett and Samuels. Pickett ran 4:46.2, and should not give the two Kentucky milers any serious trouble, as Baker's time of 4:42.2 and O'Bryant's time of a few seconds more should beat the Commodore ace.

Kennedy, of Vanderbilt, and Milliken, of the Wildcats, seem to be about evenly matched in the 440, even if Kennedy's 52.7 against Centre Saturday seems impressive. Milliken has done better in practice, going the route in 52.4, so a close race should result. Mahan will be the other Kentucky entry and (Continued on Page Four)

SULLIVAN AWARD TO BE PRESENTED

Faculty Committee To Select
Winners of Sullivan
Medallions From Outstanding
Kentuckians

The committee in charge of selecting the winners of the Sullivan medallions has been announced. The group, composed of representatives from each of the colleges, is as follows: Prof. George Roberts, Agriculture College; Dr. Jesse Adams, Education College; Dr. L. L. Dantzer, Arts and Science College; R. D. McIntyre, Commerce College; Prof. W. F. Freeman, Engineering College; Mrs. Sarah B. Holmes, assistant dean of women, and Miss Augusta Roberts, Y. W. C. A. secretary.

Sullivan medallions are presented each year to the outstanding man student, woman student, and citizen by the New York Southern society.

The basis of award is that "The Medallions are to be used to give recognition and stimulus to high thought and noble endeavor, and to be presented from time to time by the university to students of the university and to others who, because of the quality of their lives, are judged to be appropriate recipients of that distinction."

Final selection is made by the committee from the candidates nominated by faculty members. Each faculty member may nominate one man student, one woman student, and one citizen of the state, not connected with the university. Faculty nominations must be sent to the office of the dean of men, before April 22, as student eligibility is investigated and checked by that office.

FACULTY LOAN FUND

In a few more days, a fund of $40,000 will be placed at the disposal of those members of the university faculty who are in greatest need of financial assistance. Cognizant of the real distress caused in many cases by the recent cuts and delays of salary checks at the university, the business men of Lexington have cooperated in this method of demonstrating to the university their interest and good will.

Business men, as well as city authorities, recognize that the college professor is the model citizen. The value of student trade, especially in a business way, is not to be underestimated, but at best it is a more or less transient thing, existing only during the time that school is in session and having little effect on the actual civic affairs of the city. The professor, on the other hand, is a year-round resident. He lives in town, often owns his own home, and his money is spent with local merchants. He and his wife take part in civic affairs and contribute to civic enterprises. He often participates in church affairs and his children attend Lexington schools. His very profession guarantees propriety of conduct, as well as a high type of judgment in administration of responsibilities given him. In short, the university faculty forms a distinct and valuable factor in the life of Lexington, socially as well as financially. What concerns the city concerns them, and similarly, what concerns them should be the concern of the city.

Therefore, it is very fitting that the business men of the city, recognizing this, should take steps to make the faculty's temporarily difficult situation easier. Their immediate endorsement of a $40,000 loan fund, amounts payable in 15 months, by which time the university promises full payment, shows that they recognize the value of the professors' patronage, and are willing to cooperate with and assist them in every way possible. It is an action to be applauded and remembered.

"HERE SHALL THE KERNEL PRESS"

The Kernel has recently quoted in its columns an article taken from another paper concerning the very notable printing plant owned and operated by The Kernel. Should it print such an article each time that the paper came out, it would not overdo the importance of its subject.

The Kernel plant is almost unique in the annals of college journalism. A $27,000 plant, it is owned by The Kernel, itself, as a unit, and it stands as a monument to those whose efforts made it possible. Especially is it a monument to Prof. Enoch Grehan, whose financial and moral support caused it to materialize from a dream to a reality, and also does it reflect credit on Mr. D. H. Orloff, its foreman, whose skillful management has made it a success. The plant proves its usefulness to the university in many different ways. Besides the printing of The Kernel, its major objective, a great deal of other printing is done in connection with various departments of the university. The Alumni, the K Book, Letters, the Alumni Directory, the Kentucky Press, the Kampus Kat, football programs, Gungol programs, tickets and posters of various kinds, all come from its versatile confines. For the last two years it has taken up an even larger project than any of these, the printing of The Kentucky, a notable achievement, indeed, and one which enables that publication to be "of the university in every sense. Besides all this, it gives employment amounting to some $6,000 to university students—a fact which alone would justify its existence.

The student body should be proud of its paper and the plant which produces it. Only by their support and cooperation can The Kernel keep its promise as printed on the masthead, "Here Shall The Kernel Press All Student Rights Maintain."

LIBERAL COMMENT

Following the recent move of the Liberal club in announcing their advocacy of foreign student investigation in the coal mining areas of southeastern Kentucky and the subsequent action of the Men's Student council in denouncing the club's attitude, numerous communications relative to the matter have been received by The Kernel. At the same time, the nature of the letters—alleging personal prejudices and convictions often in no way connected with the real discussion—indicate a sad lack of student interest in the true and ultimate situation—that confronting the university.

Whether either the action of the Liberal club or the action of the council had any conflicting points of campus political interests; whether the actions were justified; whether The Kernel should side with one or the other: all are beside the point. The immediate concern of the student body should be the effect that publicity relative to student attitude has on the university alumni and citizens of Bell and Harlan counties.

The attitude of the Liberal club is not the general attitude of the student body. Members of the club confess that. Nevertheless, citizens upon whose support the university relies in the affected districts do not understand that. Publication of statements sympathizing with and commending the courses of foreign students in the Kentucky counties adversely affects the desirable element as well as the cleverly quoted "desirable element."

Until the majority of the students of the university have accepted the attitude of the Liberal club as that of their own, the club should be more careful with its published statements. The club should retain its liberality in its dealings with matters vitally affecting the university as well as its liberality with conventions.

Jest Among Us

The Jester tosses his typewriter into the Liberal club fiasco by giving them proper publicity and an intriguing crack:

LOVE AND KISSES, —THE JESTER

"Portion of Funds from Mite Box Yet Available"—Kernel headline. And the Jester got there just two minutes, 30 seconds late.

By the time Strollers makes up his mind where to give "Good News" maybe, if we're lucky, it'll be too late to have the darned thing.

No "Quis Vadit," for two weeks. Looks like maybe the last guy caught up with him.

"British Scholar To Visit U. K."—Kernel headline. Well, after a series of burps, we rise to "suffest" they see if they can't trade him in on a good economist.

I loved you from the start,
You were so sweet.
Night and day,
I was always with you.
I lived for your sweet kisses.
Lord, how I love you!

And then, somehow,

It seemed so cool.
(Love always does they say)
I grew quite careless.
We quarreled; and then—
Suddenly it was over!

It's for the best, (I guess)
Love can't last forever.
Yes! I should be glad.
But yet—
Oh, what can I do?

You know I'm yours forever!

FAME
Fame, like a rocket,
Soars up on high,
Leaving behind it
A trail in the sky.

With one burst of glory
That dazzles the eye,
The rocket is spent—
So fame must die.

RAIN
It attacks again,
Sends out its little searching scouts;
Advances cautiously;
And then breaks forth in fury,
Storms the windows, pelts the earth;
It hesitates;
Seems to reconsider;
And suddenly runs away—
The rain!

INTELLIGENTLY AND DISINTERESTEDLY SPEAKING
To The Editor:

The resolution recently published by the Men's Student council condemning the Liberal club can only be viewed as a bigoted example of intolerance promulgated by the selfish interest of persons wishing to increase their popularity with the so-called "respectable element" in southeastern Kentucky. The Liberal Club may not be representative of the student body, it does not pretend to be, but my observation is that intelligent disinterested persons consider the action of the council as being of no credit to an institution of learning.

The mere fact that the Liberal Club does not have its membership among fraternity men or that it does not become involved in campus political corruption is no proof that it does not exist. I understand that the club has been inactive. But if there are a few students who wish to revive free thought and who wish to assure students from other states that there is at the University of Kentucky a group with a sympathetic interest, then I see no reason why they should not address themselves as the Liberal Club.

The Indianapolis Star of March 9, carried a note of the council's action. A Butler University student in discussing it said, "I perceive that your council is like our own. It tries to be the whole show." The University and the Student Council have, indeed, received some cheap and ignominious publicity. We expect to see faces beaming with smiles of satisfaction. In view of the fact that persons are being accused of courting publicity, I trust that you will pardon me for signing.

WHO, ME?
Editor Kentucky Kernel,
Dear Editor:

I have just read the redundant, erudite, verbose bombast of Mr. Littlefield, and the quiet, tolerating half column which Mr. Weaver takes to tell the student body of the university that the Liberal club does not want publicity.

It is, perhaps, more fitting to take each one of these communications separately, and decide what each of them contains in the way of constructive criticism. It appears, after reading Mr. Littlefield's blurb that he (Mr. Littlefield) is not at all interested in the Liberal club and their troubles, but is taking advantage of that to work off a little personal animosity against Clarence Yeager. This may be justified (the animosity) but I hardly think that the Kernel should be used as the medium. We (the student body) are not interested in J. Wesley's personal likes and dislikes. That disposes of Mr. Littlefield.

As for Mr. Weaver's dissertation, it seems pitifully inadequate. (This may be my own opinion since I read it after I waded through the abstruse mental meanderings of Mr. Littlefield.) He (Mr. Weaver) insists that the Liberal club should be recognized as such, and I do not believe that any of the men and women of the university will disagree with him on that point. But I do believe that they will take exception to his calling that organization by that name. As a Liberal club it should be willing to accept the viewpoints of others with as much liberality of feeling as it wishes others to accept its own. But does their liberality go that far? It is to be doubted gravely.

I wish to differ with Mr. Weaver on one or two other points. "That any one should covet the amount of unfavorable publicity heaped on the club by the Kentucky Press seems incomprehensible," he insists. I doubt, and justly, I think, that it was more than any of the club expected. And expecting it, knowing that it would come, and going ahead anyway, seems (per se) to connote inviting it, enjoying it, (didn't you?) and by the same method wanting it. And between wanting and coveting it is only a difference of degree.

And I still maintain that the members of the club are a lot of half-baked pseudo-radicalists, going off at half-cock on the first thing that it was possible to philosophize on, their maundering pronouncements by an elder who, delighting in his own ability at a feeble ratiocination, is emulated by these few. But—shouldn't one smile tolerantly—and let the children play?

DOTES AND ANTI-DOTES

By CRAIG VAN DRUTEN

I knew that this column was lousier, dear spiteful reader. I knew it was getting lousier by the Insufferable amount of head scratching I have had to undergo in digging up dirt for your jauntied perusal. But I did not know just how rotten it was getting until one of my fraternity brothers, mind you, declared that, now, he was beginning to appreciate Ardery.

I, myself, heartily enjoy the stuff I write. I have a superiority complex (says another brother). Whether you like it, that's your look out. However, if you must have something clever, here's your chance. Write it in the space below:

And now, that that's over and you've had your one good belly-roll of the year, if you will please to continue—

The Ice Melts
An instructor has found that Kaphas do blush. One of the ettes wanted to read a certain book—insisted upon it. The gentleman would not lend her the book. Thereupon, the lady faked a phone call, and, after the prof had left the room, swiped the book. A few hours later she stalked in, tossed the book on his desk, and with a agitated, "I didn't know what kind of a book it was," skampered off.

If you really would like to know, the Kaphas are going to run away with the Junior Prom Queen elections again this year. Mary King Montgomery is the lady. And next year's Kentuckian editor will be either Horace Miner or John Kane.

When is a diddle not a diddle? Frank Seale doesn't think so. Myrtle Polk asked the ed if he cared for a kiss. Later, the over-expectant and wan Don gloomily tore the wrappers from the three he received.

ROAMIN' THE RIALTO

Arrowsmith
"Arrowsmith," Samuel Goldwyn's picturization of Sinclair Lewis' novel, comes to the Strand theater Saturday and heads the list for theatrical entertainment. Roland Colman portrays the part of Doctor Arrowsmith, while Helen Hays who was last seen in "The Sin of Madelon Claudet," plays the Doctor's nurse. The story is so well known that we will not review it, but if you enjoyed the book, you will surely enjoy the picture. Sidney Howard and John Ford have done some excellent work in adapting and directing the picture.

Ladies of the Jury
The RKO picture, "Ladies of the Jury," is the current attraction at the Kentucky theater. The picture was directed by Lowell Sherman and stars Edna May Oliver and Roscoe Ates. The vein of comedy that runs through the picture is strained at times, but in its entirety it is amusing and rather unusual. The jury room, where most of the action takes place, is a novel vehicle for a comedy setting and eliminated the usual slapstick antics of the comedians.

The Silver Lining
Starting Saturday at the Strand is a picture that is really "different"—"The Silver Lining." It depicts the humanizing of a society snob whose admirers, and so-called friends, prey upon her free and easy methods of living—a snob who has a sudden and rude awakening, and whose return to normalcy is a fascinating parade of human emotions. The cast is headed by Maureen O'Sullivan, Betty Compson, Montagu Lee, John Warburton, and a score of other stars. Its very able director is Alan Crosland.

Light Bulbs Eaten By Two Freshmen

Two University of North Carolina freshmen have recently discovered a handy and inexpensive hors d'oeuvre and which is threatening to surpass ping pong as an indoor pastime. These boys, who apparently possess cast iron digestive systems, have taken up the art of eating broken electric light bulbs and discarded razor blades.

For some time the mysterious disappearance of electric light bulbs from the dormitory bathrooms had baffled university authorities. When it was discovered that two glass hungry individuals were in their midst, however, a plausible explanation presented itself. It is thought that they can be relied upon as possible means of getting rid of old razor blades also.

These apparently "iron men" have demonstrated the art of glass and razor-blade eating to incredulous individuals with the sole proviso that the latter furnish the materials to be consumed.

When asked how it was done, one stated that thorough chewing of the glass was all that is necessary to avoid harmful effects. "It's all in knowing how," they said.

One of the experts explained how the particular type of glass of which electric light bulbs are made has smooth edges, and if properly masticated, will not prove dangerous. Old-style Gillette razor blades can be eaten in small bits with similar ease.

The Bucknellian spreads the information that the weekly phonograph concert at Rutgers University had to be called off when someone stole the needles.

MALE MAIL?

A fraternity man student at the University of Idaho has to go to a sorority house in order to receive his mail. The lucky, or unlucky, whichever you may wish to call it, fellow was listed through an oversight and no amount of talking can convince the postal authorities that he does not live there. Now he calls there daily to receive his mail amid the titters and giggles of the inmates.

Western Electric goes all around the world to make its purchases. In distant parts of the earth materials are gathered for manufacturing Bell telephones—silk from Japan, mica from India, South African gold, Australian wool.  Not only is purchasing done on a world-wide scale, but buying is raised to the status of a science at Western Electric. It includes thoroughgoing studies in the fields of economics and geography, rigid chemical and physical testing of many samples before definite selections are made.  Western Electric men, as a kind of second nature, are constantly striving for improvements. In serving the Bell System, they search constantly for better materials, better methods of manufacture, better means of distribution.

BOOK REVIEWS

POST MORTEM EFFECTS OF THE LATE JAMES BRANCH CABELL

THESE RESTLESS HEADS, by Branch Cabell. Literary Guild, New York, 1932.

This book, to which Mr. Cabell has given the sub-title "A Trilogy of Romances," is a first book of essays by the recently arisen Branch Cabell, who here attempts to wing his way out from and above the ashes of the late James Branch Cabell. But to my mind, at least, Mr. Branch Cabell retains too much of the dead, dead James Branch Cabell make his disguise as a Phoenix entirely convincing. As he, in his coy fashion, admits, his prose style may be "polished and thrice polished and then repolished"—still remains dull, and a little more rubbing will undoubtedly disclose to him the fact that anyhow he's merely been polishing a thin plate which, rather inadequately, covers a gross, almost worthless metal. The affected and self-consciously forced erudition of James Branch Cabell will not, I predict, be emulated by any astonishing feat of fiery consummation bearing away the burden of this Branch Cabell's run-out existence.

James Branch Cabell's last will and testament, I believe, from reading this book, would run something like: To my esteemed (and self-esteemed) successor, Branch Cabell, all my earthly goods (including "a hundred and forty-odd" tawdry brass, china and glass gew-gaws), the right to speak with authority about The Biography of Manuel (my one worthy work), and to shout the praises of my virtues and wisdom; my highly desirable complacency and lofty air of unconcern; lastly, my conceit, conservatism, and lackadaisical inertia. All of which Mr. Branch Cabell gladly, if a bit too readily, accepts—and proceeds to write a book, this one, in praise of Mr. James Branch Cabell, his generous patron and predecessor, a book in which he shows himself as the one right successor to such a notable author.

The four distinct main sections of the book are supposed to have some connection and some order, but it is hardly discoverable. The closest thing we can get is Cabell's word that it's there and that the parts were written "during, several, a spring morning, a summer day, an autumn afternoon, and a winter's night." Anyhow, the first section is composed largely of banal thoughts on young writers, on the approach of the postman, and of long excerpts from letters sent by various young ladies proposing assignments, vacations, education, etc., etc. One young lady sent him a key to her hotel room, and Mr. Cabell tells us "The lady who understands husbands to a degree hardly compatible with unmarried comfort then departs to attend to her household duties out of doors, which include the returning of the key to the young women..." The second part is merely a set of sentimentalities on the general subject of flags and the particular United States flag—"Stuff and Nonsense." Then Cabell expresses the burden of his conservative soul—to the extent of saying that convention, conservatism, custom, tradition (all incarnate in the bauble he calls "Aesred") are responsible for whatever of humanity, progress, or civilization we have today; and gives a remarkable impression of his insufferable conceit by pointing out all that's done by thousands of workers, through many years "so that I may now light my cigarette"—ending on the note: "This vagabond wind is at labor in its humble way, to emphasize the warm snugness of my shelter and the discreetly lighted, quiet order about me." The fourth part is only more stupid disclosures of silly minutiae in his house-furnishings and rapid breathings of his smugly contented complacency.

After all, James Branch Cabell and Branch Cabell are the same person—this ballyhooed change being all truck and tripe—and it is quite out of taste for the man to attempt to write about himself in such a fashion, thinking "now he's dead, I can hold a post mortem examination and discover the more-than-wonderful features of his make-up." And it can't be done in any tolerable fashion.
All the good to come from this book then, I say, is the pleasure the academics may have in being assured that the Biography of Manuel is now complete and therefore can be incorporated safely into courses, lectures, and shady cigarette-talk. And this is in contrast with the pleasure some may feel in realizing that even this acceptance will put James Branch Cabell's work in its right place: the almost instinctive distaste for "required" school work will at least balance the good-favor derived from ill-fame.

So, concludes Branch Cabell: "When a quest is finished, then its achiever lives happily ever afterward"—and with that he sinks with a "puff" into his upholstered chair, "beaches comfortably," and contemplates himself, his conceit, his inertia, his Victorian morality—and moralizings.

Candidates

VIRGINIA YOUNG

This is a first of a series of photographs of the nominees for the position of May Queen. A picture of one of the nominees will be published in each issue of the Kernel until the election on April 22.
Virginia Young is president of Kappa Delta sorority and is regional president of the R. O. T. C. unit. She was formerly a company and battalion sponsor. Last year Miss Young was an attendant in the May queen's entourage. She has been selected by George White, nationally known producer of musical comedies as one of the outstanding beauties on the university campus, and as such will have her picture in the beauty section of the Kentuckian, university year book.

RUTH WEHLE

Ruth Wehle, Lexington, is a member of Alpha Gamma Delta sorority and is a junior in the College of Arts and Sciences. She is vice-president of Phi Beta, dramatic sorority and a member of Strollers and Guignol, university dramatic societies. Last year Miss Wehle was initiated into Cwens, honorary sophomore society. Her picture was placed in the beauty section of the 1931 Kentuckian. In the last May day celebration she was an attendant to the Queen.

Sense of Humor Is Indispensable For Ideal Male

Good looks do not make the man. This statement has been absolutely verified at the Florida State College for Women, when the girls were questioned about their ideal man.
The ideal man is neither a Valentino nor a Will Rogers. He must be tall, have dark eyes and hair, look intelligent, have a sense of humor, and be at least an average athlete. Out of fifty girls questioned only five admitted that he should be handsome before all else. One of these girls modified her statement to say that a handsome man would of course look intelligent. Most of the girls asked for average intelligence and an interested and interesting appearance. The man must be able to carry on a conversation on almost any subject and must be able to listen.
The man who possesses a developed sense of humor is indeed fortunate. One girl states:
"I am willing to do without looks, money, brains and anything else, but the man I marry must have a sense of humor. Think how terrible it would be after the baby cried all day, you burned the dinner, and the laundry man refused to leave the clean sheets until the bill was paid. If your husband couldn't laugh about it, I value a sense of humor above all else because neither my father nor my two brothers have one."

Athletic men are favored, but one young lady says, "I can't do anything but chase tennis balls myself and I'm no good at all in a strenuous game, so why should I expect more of anyone else than I do of myself. Of course I do, and I always prefer the athletes, but I really don't mind the others."

"Consideration is one of the things we shall look for," said one girl, acting as a spokesman. "Women like men who are considerate of them. It is all right in high school days to go out on a date and expect to catch the car as it is slowed up at your gate, and to stumble across the streets by yourself, but when it comes to a show down, women like men who think of all the little things. Just pure old consideration would win me quicker than anything else."

Girls also desire an understanding mind, but the one greatest gift is probably a lasting friendship. They seem to feel that in a true friend you have the ideal man no matter what he looks like or how he acts.

Artist Says Ugliest Girls Are in College

James Montgomery Flagg, the artist, in a letter to Dr. Burgess Johnson, director of public relations at Syracuse University, accepting the job of picking the six prettiest girls of the junior class, posed thus as the custom.
"Since I pick out the prettiest girls—if any—or if six, he wrote. All sorts of colleges every year do this to the girls, salt water, fresh water and orange-water colleges, and I have had to gaze on some of the most God-awful female mugs in this God-awful narrow land!"
"I know how you think there are so many pretty girls in New York—all the ugly ones are in colleges. What else can they do? ... Let me see the worst! But as I suspect, if I don't think any of them are good to look upon, I'll say so."

Pitkin Club Meets At Weekly Luncheon

Pitkin club, luncheon organization sponsored by the Y.W.C.A., held its weekly meeting at 12 o'clock Wednesday, April 15, in the dining room of the Maxwell Street Presbyterian church. Dr. Howard M. Morgan continued his discussion on the book, "The Sermon on the Mount." The committee appointed at the last meeting to make plans for the May-day made their report. The May-day will be at 8:30 o'clock Wednesday, April 19, starting from the Maxwell Street Presbyterian church. A picnic supper will be served at Bryant Station on the Bryant Station pike. Each person will be charged twenty-five cents, and the members may bring guests.

Old Wills and Deeds Are Put on Display

A collection of old wills and deeds, which have been in the possession of the Craig family and were presented recently to the Bryan Station chapter of Daughters of the American Revolution by Miss Katherine Craig, of Grant, Boone county, Kentucky, are on display in one of the glass cases in the main lobby of the university library.
This collection is a part of the library of the local chapter of the organization, which, through the interests of Mrs. Frank McFarland and Mrs. P. B. Howard, regent of the chapter, has been moved to the library building.
Included in the collection is a land grant presented by Beverly Randolph, governor of Virginia, to Edmund Logwood in 1787, accompanied by a copy of the survey and map of the land, dated 1783.
Mrs. Howard is the author of a recent book, "Bryan Station Heroes and Heroines."

At a certain eastern college an instructor called for note books. One efficient student purchased a tattered book from one who had successfully passed the course. A few days later, the instructor, who had been graduated a few years before, returned the book with the comment, "It's a good book, but I can do better now." This we learn from the Tomahawk.

By LEONARD HORWIN
Good morning, folks.
We introduce ourselves as your special news announcers on the Olympic Games, bringing to you for the next few months interesting side-lights on the "doings" as America prepares its athletic party for the world.

UNCLE SAM THE HOST
During the last days of July and the first fourteen days of August, the United States plays host to the world and the games of the 10th Olympiad. To date, the record number of 40 nations have announced their intention to participate. Southern California, the "Playground of America," and the scene of the events, is preparing a riproaring welcome.

IT'S NOT SO
"People think of the Olympic Games as a type of glorified track meet."

Bill Henry, famed sports writer and expert, for twenty years a leading correspondent on assignments to every part of the globe, now sports technical director of the Olympic Games, was telling us of his work.

"They are far more than that. Besides including an international contest in almost every field of sport with several score nations represented they are in themselves a great gesture of international fellowship and a tradition rooted in antiquity."

"This," and the athletically built sports mentor in the tan sports suit emphasized his words, "will probably be the only time in the lives of persons now living that the games will be held in America."

OLYMPIA
These games had a deep symbolism in moss-covered antiquity. It is a matter of historical fact that down in ancient Greece great battles were called off when the moon reached a certain position in the heavens during the summer solstice. The homicide squads on both sides of the battlefield would then adjourn and tramp off to Olympia on the west coast of Greece to hold the games.

In truth, they were not games, but athletic rites of purification dedicated to Zeus, invisible ruler of heaven and earth.

The serious business over, and the victors crowned with the proper herb, the athletes would return to the horse-play on the battlefield.

DEATH AND REVIVAL
Although the Greeks had a word for him and more, the Roman emperor Theodosius finished both Greek and games in the year 394 A.D.

And that was for nearly fifteen centuries until the year 1892.

In that year the athletically-minded Freshman, Baron Pierre de Coubertin, then a youth of seventeen, proposed the revival of the games before the French Sports Union. His dream was realized at Athens four years later—the city which once beheld the glory that was Greece in the days of the Olympians, now witnessing the first modern edition of the ancient games.

(Editor's Note — An Olympic Games story will appear as a regular feature of this column.)

Netmen Defeat Wheaton 6-1 On Indoor Courts

Professor H. H. Downing and his tennis team launched their 1932 season successfully Tuesday afternoon when they defeated Wheaton College, of Illinois, 6 to 1 on the indoor courts of the gymnasium annex. The single defeat of the day came when Captain Bruce Farquhar went down at the hands of Wesley Carlson, number one player for Wheaton, 6-3, 6-4.

The Blue and White ace partly redeemed himself when he paired with Howard Wilson and defeated Carson and Van Arsen in the doubles, 6-1, 6-4.

Just as Coach Downing predicted before the season started, the strength of the 1932 team is in players number three and four. The doubles pair, K. P. Smith and George Yost surprised when they annexed their match against Coleman and Chamberlain, Wheaton, 6-2, 6-4.

The results of Tuesday's matches are:

Wesley Carlson, Wheaton, defeated Bruce Farquhar, Kentucky, 6-3, 6-4.

Roger Klein, Kentucky, defeated Roger Van Arsen, Wheaton, 6-4, 6-1.

Don Braden, Kentucky, defeated Philip Chamberlain, Wheaton, 6-3, 6-2.

Howard Wilson, Kentucky, defeated Ben Coleman, Wheaton, 6-1, 6-2.

Turner Howard, Kentucky, defeated Fred Oury, Wheaton, 6-2, 6-0.

Farquhar and Wilson, Kentucky, defeated Carlson and Van Arsen, Wheaton, 6-1, 6-4.

K. P. Smith and Yost, Kentucky, defeated Coleman and Chamberlain, Wheaton, 6-2, 6-4.

W. A. TOLMAN'S STUDY PUBLISHED

Prof. James W. Martin, director of the bureau of business research of the university, has announced publication of a study dealing with the gross sales tax in Kentucky, written by W. A. Tolman of the bureau staff. One of the national journals has previously begun publication of the work in serial form, and the director of the bureau expresses pleasure in offering the work to the public.

As a background for the analysis of the Kentucky gross sales tax law, Mr. Tolman has included in his report a synopsis of the status of sales taxes in 18 foreign countries and in the eight states in the United States which utilize this revenue-raising device. The revenues collected and the comparative importance of the sales tax are shown for each of these governmental units.

In dealing with the Kentucky situation the report includes a history of the Kentucky gross retail sales tax; and analysis of its operation and effects upon different merchants and classes of merchants; a study of the relationship of the tax to the general tax system of the state; a history of litigation concerning the act; and a critical description of the organization for administering the law. Among other interesting things brought out in the detailed study of the situation is the fact that the graduated rates provided in the sales tax law conform in some measure to the taxable capacity of the different classes of merchants. While Mr. Tolman has no examination of statistics of retail practice a certain measure of justification for the Kentucky plan which imposes higher rates on larger than on smaller merchants.

College Students Use But Very Few Words

"The record low standard of language," says Dr. Rufus von Klein Smid, president of the University of Southern California, "has been reached on the college campus." In a recent address, Dr. von Klein Smid said that of the 500 to 600 words with which common laborers are presumed to be endowed, about half make up the college freshman's vocabulary. "The word 'well' alone," he said, "is used to describe 4972 situations."

ARBOR DAY IS COMMEMORATED APRIL 15 THROUGHOUT KENTUCKY

Governor Laffoon's proclamation designating the week of April 10th as Arbor week and April 15th as Arbor day for Kentucky should be very significant this year," said W. E. Jackson, state forester, considering the natural development in line with an awakening public interest in parks, public play grounds, better roads and highways and the development of attractive surroundings on the farm.

Arbor day originated and was first observed in Nebraska. The plan as originally conceived specified that "The tenth day of April, 1872, be especially set apart and consecrated to tree planting in the state of Nebraska." Wide publicity and prizes offered to societies and individuals who should plant the greatest number of trees resulted in much enthusiasm for the plan and over a million trees were planted in Nebraska on that first Arbor day. In the fifty years since that time enthusiasm over the idea has continued in Nebraska and has spread to other states until now we find that every state and most foreign countries set aside one day each year for tree planting exercises.

In 1886, Kentucky, following a proclamation of her Governor, observed Arbor day for the first time. Only fourteen states had observed Arbor day prior to that year so it is apparent that Kentuckians had and early appreciation of the value and necessity for maintaining our forests and shade trees through tree planting. With the advent of our new highway system and our rapid increase in size and numbers of public schools we are still far from having accomplished our aims in the beautification of our public property. Added to this, changing agricultural conditions have left us more than a million acres of unproductive farm land so that the task set forth by our Arbor day proclamation is never ending if we would maintain our Commonwealth in the forefront of those states noted for the beauty and comfort, which its forests and shade trees supply.

Trees for planting by schools and civic clubs on Arbor day may be secured from the State Forest Tree Nursery by writing the Kentucky State Forest Service, Frankfort.

445 FOREIGN STUDENTS IN YALE

Students from all parts of the world are included in the present enrollment of the Yale Graduate School, according to an announcement issued by the university. A total of 945 students came from North and South America, from the British Isles and eleven countries of Europe, from East, South and West Africa, and from Asia, Australia and New Zealand. The enrollment from North America includes students of forty-five states in the United States, one from Alaska and twenty-three Canadians. Some 322 institutions are represented by the degrees held by the students in the Graduate School. The enrollment includes representatives of forty-four foreign institutions.

President F. McVey Attends Meeting On Consolidation Plans

President Frank McVey returned from Chicago Wednesday where he attended a meeting on the reorganization and consolidation of the schools of North Carolina. All state institutions in the state are affected by the move, it is reported.

Complete information of the plans are not available but it is known that the State College at Raleigh and the Women's College at Greensboro are to be reorganized or consolidated. Whether the schools will remain in the same city in which they are now or whether they will be moved to the campus of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill was not ascertained.

The state legislature recently cut the appropriations of the North Carolina schools and the new move may be a part of a general economy program.

Wildcat Trackmen Will Journey South

Holiday will run for the Commodores. Mahan and Captain O'Bryant will be the Wildcat entries in the half mile, opposed by Samuels who flashed by the runners Saturday to win in 2:06, which was excellent time for a rainy, windy day. This race is a toss-up and any of these three men may win the race.

Hocker, lanky Big Blue two-miler, seems to be just a shade superior to the Vandy two-milers, Proctor and Hancock, whose time of 10:42.5 is inferior to Hocker's best time by 10 seconds. Hocker is improving every day and will have several seconds off of his present time before the season is over. Baker, the other Wildcat long-distance man, will run his customary good race and may come through with a second place.

Emmerich and Kercheval, 'Cat high hurdles, ran the hurdles in mid-season form in the trials Wednesday, going over the 10 barriers in :16.7 seconds. King and Tigert will give the high hurdles some keen opposition as they have finished the difficult flight in good time. Emmerich and Hand will run the 220 yard low hurdles for the 'Cats and will be opposed by King, whose time of :27.3 is much better than that turned in by either Hand or Emmerich.

The pole vault should turn out to be a most interesting event, as Owen of Vanderbilt and Porter and Hubble of the Big Blue have all reached the height of 10 feet, six inches in recent trials.

Roberts and Porter will compete for the Shivelymen in the high jump, with the only Vandy threat coming from Newton, whose 5 feet, 8 inches is hardly good enough to win over "Bealy" Roberts, who consistently does 5 feet, 10 inches in practice, and attained it several times last year in dual meets.

Kelly and Porter will broad jump against Johnson of the Tennessee school, and Kelly will be hard put to eke out a win over Johnson, who has bettered 22 feet several times this season.

Mains should provide quite a bit of competition against Fortune in the shot put, as his distance equals that attained by the Nashville strong man. Epps will be the other Blue and White shot-putter. The strength of the opponents' discs throwers is unknown, but Ken Andrews should have little difficulty in turning in another win. Epps will also flip the iron disc for the 'Cats.

Kercheval and Kelly encountered an outstanding brand of opposition in the javelin throw, meeting Smith of Vanderbilt who has tossed the long pole as far as Kercheval has been able to attain.

The mile relay team of Vanderbilt has been undefeated in dual meets for 17 years and followers of this year's team are confident that the record will remain intact as the four members of the team have showed class in their workouts, going the mile in 3:37.1, which is much superior to the time turned in by Coach Shively's boys. The members of the Big Blue relay team Saturday will be Ball, Carter, Mahan, and Milliken.

The squad will leave about 8 o'clock this morning in charge of Coach Bernie Shively. The following will make the trip: Ball, Kelly, Baker, Hand, Emmerich, Hocker, Milliken, Mahan, Carter, O'Bryant, Kercheval, Hubble, Porter, Roberts, Mains, Epps, Andrews, Lowenthal, Trainer Frank Mann, and Manager Jolly.
